Text: English, Italian (translation)

John Wright (PhD, University of Notre Dame) is professor of theology and Christian Scriptures at Point Loma Nazarene University in San Diego, California. He is also senior pastor of The Church of the Nazarene in San Diego and author of "Telling God's Story: Narrative Preaching for Christian Formation."

A contemporary biography of Cola di Rienzo, the charismatic lower-middle class Roman whose attempts to revive the glory days of Rome came to an end with him hanging in a fishmarket, lynched by the same Romans who had put him into power. Brief, readable, and a window into a little-understood era of Roman history

I'm a history buff, so I really enjoyed this work for the mere sake of learning, but I have to say that as a historical chronicle goes The Life of Cola Di Rienzo is one of the must-buy chronicles, because it presents an excellent account of the life of a man who can be considered the most influential hero and villain in Late Medieval Italian civic affairs.

Just what I asked for
