Finally, a city guide that appeals to me. I checked out 4-5 guides at my local book store, but they all seemed wordy and boring. This book has: two pull out maps, built in book mark, elastic closure, and easy to use itinerary cards. Also, each activity card has a top tip, map location, restaurant choice, basic facts, and opening/closing times. We won't have a lot of time to play tourist as the main reason we will be in the area is to participate in clinical research at NIH. This book will make it easy to find something to do, if we are able to have any downtime in the evening or on our last day.

The book is set up that a page is divided into 3 sections horizontally. The top for the morning, middle for afternoon, and bottom for the night time. You can flip through the book and take the morning section of say page 2, line in up with the afternoon of page 4, etc. Problem is if a museum is in the morning section but you're actually planning to go in the afternoon. So I didn't find it that helpful. I only really used it for the included map.

This guide only serves to know the "name" of the attractions. If you do days like they suggest you'll end up exhausted, specially if you go visit over the summer. I know you "don't have" to do everything, and I didn't do it. However, you should consider that when you buy it (as many other reviewers had said).

The Lonely Planet Guides are the best and are jam packed with fun, creative ideas. What is so awesome about this book is that the book is a tri-fold so you can flip and plan what you'd like to do in the morning, afternoon & evening. I used to live in Arlington, VA and we got this book as a gift for a young couple/dear friends who are moving to D.C. This book is what truly got them so excited about moving versus thinking about being homesick for Atlanta!

Everything I needed in a nice layout easy to cram in my purse. Very happy with it.

Don't get me wrong, this is a decent book. Don't look for much depth beyond the obvious. You can find the top tourist destinations (which is all that's listed in this book) easily in a number of different places. Having said that, if you've got a short time in Rome (or another "Make My Day" city), then this is not a bad option.

perfect for our trip to washington
