Michael Zee studied photography at the Arts Institute at Bournemouth and later went on to teach Art and Design in secondary schools in London's East End. He then completed his masters in Museums and Galleries in Education at the Institute of Education and has worked at Tate Modern, Tate Britain, and most recently in public programming at the Victoria & Albert Museum, London. Michael's passion for cooking comes from his parents and his mixed English, Scottish, and Chinese heritage. Weekends and school holidays would be spent working in his father's Chinese and English chippies in Liverpool and teaching himself to bake for his mother's sweet tooth. Michael created SymmetryBreakfast for his partner Mark in their Hackney flat in 2013. Mark's hectic job as a menswear fashion designer means late nights and weekends in the office. Early on in their relationship, breakfast became a sacred moment in the day and Michael started on his mission to make each meal as celebratory as possible. Over 1,000 breakfasts later, Michael still wakes up early to make breakfast for Mark, looking carefully around the world and at home for inspiration, taking a simple idea and making it beautiful.

Beautiful book. Practical recipes.

This book is beautiful and takes you all over the world with breakfast! Amazing pictures and thoughtful tips. I gave it as a gift for Christmas because I loved it so much, the receiver was in awe! Well done, Michael Zee!

The photography is amazing and the recipes are beautiful; however the recipes are pretentious AF. Wish I would have realized that and done more research going in, because none of these recipes are easy for the casual chef-wanna-be.
