Matt Christopher is the best selling name behind more than 100 sports-themed books for young readers.

My first grade son loves dogs and football. This story combines both and was a good read for him. There is even a bit of a lesson about sportsmanship.

My newly-reading first grader couldn't put the book down. He finished the 47 or so pages in no time. The vocabulary was challenging, the plot interesting and the illustrations "grown up." It would be interesting to boys and girls, football fans and non-fans alike. If your child is not reading at the 1st grade level and able to decipher a few words like "triumphant" and "defenseman", I recommend Leonard Kessler's "Kick, Pass and Run." The difficult words are one's like "receiver" or "touchdown." Would work for a younger early reader. Note that it is easier, but still about 64 pages long.

I used this book while tutoring a group of struggling readers who loved UT football. We spent a whole week focusing on football especially UT football. The children enjoyed this cute story.

I bought this just as my 6 year old son was getting into watching football on tv and pretending he was a football player. Harry the dog can talk to Mike the young boy via telepathy and ends up giving him the plays he overhears the other side planning to help the team win the first game. In the second game, Mike has to decide if he will use Harry's telepathic powers or go without. It's an enjoyable read aloud book with a lesson about how it's not really winning when someone cheats.

All of Matt Christopher's books are great books for your sports loving kids! Well written, super engaging and a hit with my nephews!!!

A Fun Book by Matt Christopher, a favorite author of many boys.

Perfect for the kids I read to at our local school!

grandson loves it
