Two Badges, Two Lives

Synopsis

There are only a few people inside the Agency who ever eventually found out the real story behind my story. A few of them were US attorneys, but that wasn't until a few years later. I gave the briefing to three US attorneys working under Attorney General Janet Reno and three senior DEA staff inspectors from the DEA in Washington DC, as well as my legal defense counsel from Coral Gables. The briefing was given in the Bubble Room of the US attorney's office where nobody can hear anything outside of that office. When I finished telling the story, everybody just kept sitting there, shaking their heads in disbelief. By that time, Jorge and myself had probably compiled in excess of ten DEA Administrative awards for cases we worked on. I'm sure they wondered, "Where did those guys ever go wrong?"

Customer Reviews

A compelling book gives an inside look that most people never get to see. Shows how corruption can fester within government agencies, starting with the DEA to the US attorney's office. I recommend buying this book you will not be disappointed great read, terrific editing.
