Barbara Ireland, a writer and editor based in western New York State, is a former deputy travel editor and deputy Op-Ed page editor at The New York Times. While on the Times staff, she commissioned and edited many "36 Hours" columns and wrote a few herself. She is a graduate of Cornell University and was a John S. Knight journalism fellow at Stanford University.

Love the quality. This book will last a long time..... The cover and binding are superb. Easy to open and lay flat. Paper and printing is outstanding. Lay out is great and tabs and ribbons make it a snap to relocate items. This will not provide a full or definitive answer to what to do in any given location but it will provide an outstanding frame work.. Also great when two people are planning a trip. A heck of lot easier to compare selections in a book versus a iPad.Content is superb. A fun way to plan a trip. Find a location and read what the Times had/has to say about a destination.

I've bought multiple copies of this book after discovering it on my sister's coffee table! It is a great gift for couples, newlyweds, or anybody who loves to travel. It is my go-to for quick weekend getaways, and I also see it as sort of a "challenge" to see if we can knock everything off, and not get distracted by the less significant attractions.

This is fantastic and makes me so excited to travel! It is a beautiful book, well organized with pictures and colored tabs for the different regions of the states. Having lived in a few different major cities, I can say that it definitely includes the hidden gems that you wouldn't get from normal travel guides or just searching online.

I love reading this column in the Times. While realistically, you may forget to consult the book before a big trip - or some of the recs may get out of date - I still love cozying up on the couch and reading and dreaming about cities I want to visit. I think it's one of those great coffee table books (i love the whimsical illustrations too) to have around to peruse every once in a while :) And, if you remember to consult it before travel, the recommendations are usually very good.

Got this as a gift for a friend who takes multiple trips a year in the US and Canada and they loved it. Said it would be a great resource when planning future trips. It provides photos of different attractions as well as maps to show you where everything is located for each city.

It's so much fun to read and see what a place has to offer in 36 hours! Went to one of the restaurants in Vancouver and it was a hit! (no other travel guide recommended it!) Great coffee table book as well!

Gave this as a college graduation book - it has short itineraries for weekend trips around the USA. Pretty little book and made a nice graduation gift. It isn't a hard cover - but a little heavier than a paper back..

Awesome bridal shower gift! The bride loved this gift along with a piece of luggage. The rest of the group was paging through it as well. It is very informative and helpful.
